LIGHTNING STRIKES HOUSE. Roof is Demolished, While Family Has Miraculous Escape.

Sunday afternoon, of last week, during a severe electrical storm, the residence of Vee Kelley, six miles from Hickman, in the upper bottom, was struck by lightning and the roof practically demolished. The ceiling and a telephone were torn off the wall in a hall, and several large jars, on the porch where Mrs. Kelley was churning, were broken. With the exception of a severe shock sustained by Mrs. Kelley, none of the family were injured. At the time of the accident there were six or eight people in the house, and their escape from injury was miraculous.

are mosquitoes. As they sting they put deadly malaria germs in the blood. Then follow the icy chills and the fever. The appetite flies and the strength fails; also malaria often paves the way for deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; give you a fine appetite and renew your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "three bottles drove all the malaria from my system, and I've had good health ever since." Best for all stomach, liver and kidney ills. See at Heim & Ellison's.

NOT KNOWN HERE.

A special appeared in the St. Louis papers Saturday as follows:

Joseph Meyer, 101 years old, who has lost six children and a chicken farm by floods, has started to a Chicago institution of charity with 5 cents in his pocket. He declared he would cover the distance alone. After the Galveston tidal wave had killed his two sons and four daughters, Meyer gathered what remained of his $30,000 fortune and started a chicken farm at Hickman, Ky. The flood there last month destroyed his chickens and everything else but a few odds and ends. These he sold and started for Chicago. He was born in Berlin in 1811. He says he served in the Mexican and Civil Wars.

The Courier has interviewed a number of our oldest citizens, and none of them have ever heard of the unfortunate man mentioned in the above item, nor is there a chicken farm in this vicinity.

The plan to send an uninstructed delegation to Baltimore is the offspring of hypocrisy and cowardice. It is a scheme to sell Kentucky out to the highest bidder. There will be big money at Baltimore. Those who are onto the inside of what is going forward know this. Wall street, and by Wall street we mean the furtive money-breeding end of it, looks to get in its hands as the result of an unexpected deadlock through the confusion created thereby and incident thereto, and the Haly-Beckham bunch perfectly understanding the meaning of the chance, would have an uninstructed delegation on the ground and in its own hands ready for quick delivery, "p-d-a" and "c-o-d." That is all there is to it fellow Democrats. That is its length, breadth and thickness, men of Kentucky.—Eix.

Clothes that keep shape

YOU know the importance to you of having your clothes keep shape; and you know how very uncommon this quality is in clothes. One important point in giving clothes this shape-keeping quality is the proper shrinkage of the cloth before it's cut.

have their own process of shrinking, by special machinery which they invented. It's a process that would ruin any but all-wool fabrics; you can imagine what would happen to the common cotton mixtures of which most clothing is made if the fabrics were subjected to such a process.

Uncle Joe Noonon, who has served this county well and faithfully for 18 years as jailer, is really one of Hickman's old citizens. While a caller at this office Friday, he had occasion to refer to that fact that he came to Hickman (then known as Mills Point) in September, 1844. And what changes. He saw the first steel wing plow made that ever came to Hickman. Joe Pierce was running a plow factory where W. A. Dodds new building is now located. The plow was taken out and tried in the presence of a crowd of farmers, who were anxious to see the "critter" work. Several of them were unanimous in their opinion that it was no good, stating "you can't make any corn with that thing; it turns the ground over too slick." In 1857, Mr. Noonon decided to go in to the dray business, and City Clerk Judge Walker issued him a license from his office in the old Kirk building, the same room as is now occupied by Dr. Overby. This was before Uncle Joe was a housekeeper, and he tells us that he boarded at Jno. Everett's hotel, located at that time where Prof. B. F. Gabby's residence now stands. Later he married and started housekeeping in the second story of a building, on the corner now occupied by the Hickman Hardware Company's warehouse, east of the Courier office. In this building his first child was born. Later Mr. Noonon entered the race for county jailer, defeating Geo. Carpenter and W. F. Blakemore. He has been defeating his opponents for this office for 18 years now, and expects to do the same thing next year. We expect he has kissed more babies, and bought more striped candy and cheap cigars than any two men in the county—with Circuit Clerk Morris, probably, a close second. Uncle Joe stands up well under the weight of 75 summers, and with the exception of his snow-white hair, he has the appearance of a man many years his junior.

Did you ever stop to think what a great labor saver the home paper is as a means of communication with absent friends? "Write to me often," is the last command the one breaking away from home ties so often gives to those left behind. In the rush and hurry of every day very few people nowadays have time to devote to correspondence of the leisurely kind the people of other days kept up with such unvarying punctuality. And here is where the Courier saves a world of trouble. It is better than a letter, too, for it contains much that a letter would not. Items of interest are in it that the writer of a letter might not know or overlook. It is wonderful how eagerly one devours a home paper when a stranger in a strange land. Even the people you do not know intimately while at home, become of absorbing interest to you when you read that they have died or married or figured otherwise prominently in the home affairs. If there is some one of your family away from home, try sending them this paper regularly and a letter occasionally and see if they do not appreciate the favor of the paper.

Uncle Sam's 10-year lease on the Tyler building, in which the postoffice is located expires the first of next month. As is their custom, the government will ask for bids for a similar lease in a short time. A 10-years lease by Uncle Sam is a better proposition than renting to Tom, Dick and Harry, and we understand several bids are forthcoming. The postoffice may change locations with a renewal of contract.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Hertweck and son, Arch, will leave soon for Fresno, Cal., to make their home. Mr. Hertweck and wife are two of Hickman's oldest and most highly respected citizens and their many friends regret that they are to leave us.

POSTOFFICE BILL PASSED. Rural Route Parcels Post Among Main Features.

After several weeks of debate the house Friday finally passed the postoffice appropriation bill carrying approximately $260,000,000 for the expenses of the postal service for the next fiscal year. The bill passed by a vote of 227 to 5 without a roll call, although roll calls were had on several of the legislative features of the bill. General debate then was begun on the legislative, executive and judicial measure.

Among the important legislative sections of the postoffice bill is that which creates an experimental parcels post on strictly rural routes and a temporary parcels post on general routes. This legislation, however, is subject to change at the next session, when a joint committee authorized by the bill, make recommendations for the establishment of an unlimited parcels post. As adopted the parcels post rates on rural routes will be 5 cents a pound for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound on packages not exceeding eleven pounds in weight. The general rate is 12 cents a pound with a package limit of eleven pounds.

Other legislative features of the bill embrace the Shackelford good roads amendment providing for federal aid to good roads by a system of tolls for the use of roads over which rural routes are carried; the Harnhardt amendment requiring newspapers and periodicals to publish the names of their owners and stockholders, and committee amendments revoking the "gag" rule in the postoffice department, and also requiring that steel cars only shall be used for the railroad mail service after July 1, 1917.

The good roads amendment is the sugar coating on the mail order pill, and the "system of tolls" may be a bigger thing than it appears.

FOUR VOTES AT STAKE.

All this quarrel about whether Kentucky shall send an instructed, or instructed delegation to Baltimore, is a mere tempest in a teapot. Whatever the Convention may decide to do will effect the four delegates-at-large, and those four votes might break or make the man who receives or fails to receive them. It is evident that this matter is not generally understood, but a brief explanation will make it plain.

Every congressional district has the right to select two delegates to the Baltimore Convention. When the various counties making up these congressional districts select these two delegates they can instruct them, or not instruct them, as they see fit. Their action cannot be revised, vetoed or effected in any way by the State Convention to be held at Louisville on May 29th. It remains entirely with the democrats in the various congressional districts to say how they want their district delegates to vote at Baltimore.

When the State Convention is held its duty is simply to elect four delegates-at-large, and then if it sees fit these four delegates can be instructed to vote for some particular man, or they can be left to vote for whomever they please. Honest men will not object to representing the people—others should have no chance to sell out.

So after all the party is being split into factions and the state torn into fragments because one set of democrats believe Kentucky ought not tell these four men how to vote at Baltimore. These four delegates, it is conceded will be made up of Governor James B. McCreary, Senator-elect Olie James and two other able democrats.

So, after all, it is a prize worth fighting for, because if Mr. Clark secures these four votes it might nominate him, and if Mr. Wilson or Mr. Underwood or Mr. Harmon, or any one else gets them it could effect the result. With this illumination shed on the situation, does it appear clear to you, gentle reader, that the politicians are involving us in a disgraceful row over a very small matter?

It isn't enough to believe that "every cloud has a silver lining," and then sit down and wait for the lining to reveal itself. We can, if we will, take the X-ray of determination, and pierce the cloud and find its bright side.

The poorest girls in the world are those not taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them and they have been taught to despise labor and to depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. The most forlorn women belong to this class. It

While we carefully guard whatever is womanly in our daughters, let them be trained to more of fibre and firmness. Educate them to self-denial if pecuniary circumstances demand it, and not to self-indulgence. Accustom them to be or service in the household, to regard economy as praiseworthy and even heroic, and to add to their other accomplishments a practical knowledge of work and the possession of some lucrative position or industry by which they can support themselves. Such girls, when portionless will carry to their husbands dowries in themselves.

Some men respond more slowly to the touch of a woman's hand displayed in their homes and upon their surroundings. The task may seem hopeless to the wife at times. But sooner or later the effect will show itself. There is something in every man which responds to a higher and gentler influence. Let his home be rough and he will be rough. But infuse into that home a softening touch be it ever so simple, and the man feels it even though he may not directly notice it. He imbibes it unconsciously and its effect is sure upon him.

Woman's Rights.

Woman now has, or should have, the right to govern her own home. The right to vote is insignificant when compared to this. She must be its mistress, but never its slave. That she has made it immaculate in cleanliness and resplendent in beauty is not enough. She must feed the love and truth which should unitedly govern it. What power or dignity can reach higher? What is the ability to sway large audiences over a home with such skill that husband and children shall rise up and call her blessed? To be the ruling spirit in such a position is a more sacred honor than to rule an empire. "Woman's rights!" Has man any higher or more noble? And when husband

When we learn to be polite, not only as society people, but as husbands and wives, sisters and brothers, parents and children, we shall do well. No home can be happy where sarcastic speech and rude disregard for one another's rights is the rule.

If you make children happy now you make them happy twenty years from now by the remembrance of it.

We fear many good housewives make a serious mistake in giving too much time to Sunday cooking. Others perhaps are equally in error by over-working on Saturday, so that they cannot properly rest or enjoy the Sabbath day. Parents and children ought to be more to each other on that day than on any other. A day of uplift and delight it ought to be made in every home.

Happiness is a perfume that one cannot shed over another without a few drops falling on one's self.

God intended that there should be one day each week as an especial day for the culture of home ties. A day when the father would be home from work, and the children home from school, and the mother have less of household care, when all could put on their best clothes, sing their sweetest songs, and enjoy a day of love. The Sabbath should never be made a day of labor in the home.

we are a divided family, with fighting men on either side."

"Little these outlaws care for that." "At least they appear to, as we remain unmolested. There has not been a raiding party halted here since the war began."

"Well, if you hadn't been at home, there would have been one along now," burst forth Grant rather roughly. "Those fellows out there are desperate enough to sack the house if that was their only method of getting food. And I promised they should have the chance."

"Oh, you did, indeed! That would have proven a friendly act." "Necessity does not take much account of friendship. I was responsible for a hundred starving men. Under such conditions force would be justified. I doubt if I could control the fellows now if provisions should be refused."

"There is no necessity for indulging in threats, Captain Grant," said the boy's voice coldly. "Elmhurst has never yet turned a soldier away in hunger. Peter will instruct what few servants remain to attend to the immediate needs of your men. May I ask how long you expect to remain?"

"I thought Grant was walking nervously back and forth across the room. "How long? Until night, probably. Then with a bite in our haversacks we'll take the road again. That is, providing you condescend to act as our host for so long a time. Odds life! but this reception is not over warm to my thinking."

"Elmhurst is not a tavern, sir." "No; but the home of a loyalist—the commander of half those men out yonder. However I am not pleading for them, but myself personally. What welcome have I had? By all the gods, I was almost compelled to fight that bald-headed old fool to even gain admittance to the hall. Were those your orders?"

"Assuredly not. But you must consider circumstances, and forgive Peter for being over zealous in my service I received you as soon as I knew who you were."

"Yes," somewhat mollified, "I presume that is true, although you are chilly enough, the Lord knows. But what brings you here?"

"That must remain my secret, Captain Grant—for the present."

"Oh, very well. I thought it might have some connection with Eric's presence in this neighborhood."

"With Eric! What do you mean? Have you seen him?"

"Ah! so I've got below the surface at last! I thought I might with that thrust. Yes, I saw him last night. I didn't know what the devil the fellow was up to, but I thought I'd let him play out his game. It was a right nifty trick, so far as it went, but unfortunately the rebels came in before I discovered what it all led up to."

"You do not make it very clear to me."

"I told you it was not even clear to myself. This is all I know. When I joined Delavan last night just after dark, he had a young officer of Light Dragoons in charge of his advance guard. I merely got a glimpse of the fellow as we rode in, and he looked so devilishly like Eric that I asked Delavan who the lad was. He said he had joined at Mount Holly with three men, was going through to Philadelphia with despatches from New York and was only too glad to escort the rest of the way. Being short of officers Delavan gave him charge of the van."

"Did he recognize you?" "I hardly think so; it was pretty dark, and I was put on guard over the rear wagons. I supposed I would have ample opportunity to learn the truth after it became daylight."

"But you believed him to be Eric?" "Yes, and after the attack I was convinced. He and the three men with him bolted and got away. Must have run at the first fire, for the fellows had us completely hemmed in. It was Eric all right, and that is about half the reason why I led my men back here—I wanted to find out if he was hiding about the old place. Is it true you haven't seen him?"

"Quite true; indeed I had no reason to suppose him in the Jerseys at this time."

Grant remained silent, probably not wholly convinced that he was being told the truth, and yet not venturing to state openly his suspicions. However the other said no more, and finally ly the Ranger felt compelled to answer.

"Of course," he explained rather lamely, "I couldn't altogether blame you for concealing the boy if he had shown up here, but you will realize that as a King's officer I have a serious duty to perform."

"You would apprehend Eric? Would betray him into British hands? Is that your meaning, Captain Grant?"

"What else could I do? Don't be unreasonable! Boy as he is, no one in all that crew of ragamuffins has done us greater harm. Again and again he has learned our secrets and brought Washington information of our plans. How he does it is the mystery of this department—Howe has personally offered a thousand pounds for his arrest. Surely you know that. Last night I thought we had him in our power, but the very devil seems to protect him from capture, even when luck brings him fairly within our grip."

"And so you came here to search for him? I could feel the bitter scorn in the voice. "In his father's home!" "I certainly did," angrily. "I shall search the house from cellar to garret before I leave."

"But you are on parole."

"Damn the parole. What do I care for a pledge given to a band of plundering outlaws? And what do I care for Eric? He chose for himself, and has no right to expect any mercy from me, and by all the gods, he'll receive none. I half believe that attack last night was his planning, and that now you have him hidden away here. Now listen to me! I do not desire to be harsh, but I'm a soldier. My men are not armed, but there are enough out there to handle the servants barehanded. No one can get out of this house without being seen; I've attended to that."

"And you propose searching the rooms?"

"I do. If you had been a little more genial I might have exhibited greater courtesy. But I haven't any use for Eric, and never had. Now you know the truth."

"It merely illustrates more clearly your character."

"You are always free enough with your comments. I shall do my duty to the King."

"Very well, sir," and the incensed lieutenant pushed back his chair.

"Then we clearly understand each other at last. I am sincerely glad of it. From now on I shall never again be guilty of mistaking you for a friend or a gentleman. No, I have no wish to listen to another word; you have spoken frankly enough, and I understand the situation. Perhaps it is only anger, but it gives me the excuse I have been seeking after a long while in vain. Whatever claim you may have had upon my regard in the past is over with, forever over with, Captain Grant."

"But—but, surely—"

"I mean precisely that. You can cover your despicable actions with the gloss of military duty, but I know you now as a revengeful liar. Treat this house as you please. I refuse to have any more dealings or words with you. I'll provision you and your men, as I would any others suffering from hunger, but that ends all. If you search this house do it by force, and in any way you please, but expect no assistance from me. I bid you good-day, sir, and will send Peter to call you when breakfast is ready."

I closed the crack of the door as he came forth into the hall, having no desire to be caught listening. My own position was more unpleasant and hazardous than ever. Whatever reason the lieutenant might have for holding me prisoner I was convinced he possessed no knowledge as to my real identity. The probability was that after an interview I would be released. But Grant would recognize me instantly, and he proposed searching the house, room by room, seeking this man Eric. I must make my escape first. Yet how could this be accomplished? I heard Peter pass along the hall, and solemnly announce the serving of breakfast. He and Grant exchanged a few sentences, and then the latter strode to the front door, where he gave orders to the men. I watched the German officers come up the steps, while the majority of the others forming into irregular line, marched around the corner of the house. A small squad remained, however, on guard, facing the front entrance.

CHAPTER XIV.

Again the Lady.

I must think rapidly, and act as quickly. Yet, if what Grant had said was true, that he had already posted guards on each side the house, then escape by daylight was practically impossible. From all I could see there was no concealment close at hand, and while the fellows were without arms, yet their numbers were sufficient to make any attempt at running their lines extra hazardous. And I had much at risk, for if taken it would be as a spy, and not a mere prisoner of war. There was no place for concealment in the library, but there might be upstairs, in the attic, or on the roof. The chance was worth the trial, and there could be no better time for such an experiment than while the three officers were at breakfast. Whatever servants remained about the house would be busily employed also, and probably I should have the entire upper portion to myself. Deciding to make the venture I had my hand on the knob of the door, when it was opened quietly from without, and I was startled by the sudden appearance of Peter. Whatever excitement may have prevailed among the other members of this peculiar household this model servant remained with dignity unruffled. He surveyed me calmly, rubbing his bald head with one hand.

"You will pardon the delay, sir," he said calmly. "But circumstances have arisen changing the original plans. Will you kindly accompany me?"

"But where, Peter? I don't wish to be seen by these new arrivals."

"Have no fear, sir," condescendingly, and with an authoritative wave of the hand. "The officers are at table, and will know nothing of our movements."

I followed meekly enough, and he led the way up the broad stairs to the second story, turning to the left in the upper hall, and coming to a pause before a partially opened door. A glimpse within made me deem it a music room, although I could see merely along one wall.

"You will enter, sir, while I return to the guests below."

With one glance into this perfectly expressionless countenance, half suspicious of some new trick, I stepped across the threshold. The curtains were drawn, and the room seemed dark after the sun-glare of the hall. I advanced a step or two, almost convinced the apartment was unoccupied when a voice addressed me.

"Under more favorable conditions Major Lawrence, it would give me pleasure to welcome you to the hospitalities of Elmhurst."

I swung about as on a pivot and saw her standing with one hand upon the high back of a chair, her blue eyes smiling merrily. I felt the hot rush of blood to my cheeks, the quick throb of pulse, with which I recognized her. I was so surprised that, for the instant, the words I sought to utter choked in my throat.

"You have not suspected?" she asked. "You did not know this was my home?"

"Nothing was farther from my thoughts," I exclaimed hastily. "All I knew of your home was that it was situated somewhere in the Jerseys. But wait, perhaps I begin to understand—the lieutenant who brought me here; his voice has been echoing in my ears."

"You Have Not Suspected?" She Asked. "You Did Not Know This Was My Home?"

tain Grant speak?"

"Yes; I could not very well help doing so. Peter had stationed me in the library, but there was nothing said between you two to make me suspect your identity."

"You supposed me to be the lieutenant?"

"Why should I not? The voice was the same; at least sufficiently similar to deceive me, and he never addressed you in a way to arouse my suspicions. Is your brother named Eric?"

"Yes; I told you, did I not, that we are twins? The physical resemblance between us is very strong; no doubt our voices sound alike also, or would to a comparative stranger. Will you not be seated, Major? We shall not have long to converse, and there is much to be said before those downstairs complete their rather frugal meal—Peter has promised to delay serving as much as possible, but, as our larder is not extensive, at best it will not be long. You overheard Captain Grant's threat?"

"To search the house for your brother—yes."

"He will carry it out," quietly, her eyes, no longer smiling, on my face.

"There has never been friendship between those two, and of late my own relations with Captain Grant have become very unpleasant. I think he is almost glad of an opportunity to thus exercise some authority over me. He is the kind of a man who must either rule or ruin. Convinced that Eric is concealed here, he will search the house as much to spite me as for any other reason. I should only laugh at him, but for your presence."

"Then your brother is not here?"

"Certainly not; Eric is in no danger—but, Major Lawrence, you are."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission
by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a will, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British Army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith
shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

"It is called 'Elmhurst,' sir."

"Elmhurst? A country estate?"

"Yes, sir, one of the old plantations."

"It's a name I never heard. Where is that precious lieutenant?"

"I presume he is in bed, sir," and Peter rose quietly to his feet, and began replacing the dishes on his tray.
Apparently there was not a nervous
throb to his pulse, and he remained blissfully indifferent to my presence.
I stared helplessly at him, even words
failing me.

"You refuse to inform me as to the truth of this affair?" I faltered at last,
as he lifted his burden on one arm.
He turned a stolid face my way.

"I would seem so, sir. I have to thank you for a most delightful evening, sir. Your conversation has been both instructive and entertaining.
However, sir, the hour is now late,
and I should advise your retiring."

He bowed solemnly, backing toward
the door, and I sprang to my feet,
overtaken by a sudden determination to make a break for freedom. There was a slight glitter in Peter's gray eyes, as he rapped sharply with his heel on the door.

"I hardly think that would be advisable, sir," he warned softly. "The man outside is armed, and in the excitement might hurt you."

There was a click of the lock, and the heavy door swung open. I stood motionless, tempted to spring, yet not daring the venture. Peter backed majestically out, and I caught a glimpse of the graybeard, and the black outline of a pistol. Then the door closed, leaving me alone. The little scrap of candle left sputtered feebly, and, after walking across the floor a half-dozen times, striving to gain control of my temper, I blew it out, and crawled into the bunk. There was nothing I could do, but wait for morning; not a sound reached me
from without, and, before I realized
the possibility, I was fast asleep.

I must have slept long and soundly,
for when I finally awoke a gleam of sun lay the full length of the room, and food was upon the table. Someone—Peter, no doubt—had entered and departed without arousing me.
Sleep had left me in a pleasanter
frame of mind, and I ate heartily, wondering vaguely what the day would disclose. I determined one thing, that when Peter returned for the dishes, I would back him into a corner and choke at least a portion of the truth out of his unwilling throat. I had hardly reached this decision when the door opened, and he stood there gazing at me with sphinx-like stupidity.
I arose to my feet, gripping the back of a chair, but the utter vacancy in that face seemed to numb action.
There was no positive expression, no
dim glimmer of interest in his features; the shining bald head alone
gave him a grotesque appearance, restraining me from violence. I could as easily have warred with a baby.

"I trust, sir, you slept well," he said soothingly, "and that the service is satisfactory."

I choked back my indignation, the quiet deference of his manner causing me to feel like a brute.

"Nothing could be added to my happiness," I answered, "unless it might be a little information which you seem disinclined to furnish."

He waved one hand, as though brushing calmly aside some imagined insect.

"Disinclined? Oh, no, sir; there is nothing to conceal, sir, I assure you."

"Then, for God's sake, let it out of your system, man!" I burst forth impatiently. "Whom am I a prisoner to?
What am I held for? What sort of treatment is this I am receiving?"

Peter bowed, without the tremor of an eyelash.

"Do not mention it, sir," he murmured smoothly; "we are only too proud to have you as our guest at Elmhurst. It has been very quiet here now for some weeks, sir, and your coming was welcome to us all."

I could only stare at the fellow with open mouth, so dumbfounded as to be speechless. Of all the idiots I had ever met he was the worst, or else
his acting was magnificent. To save me I was not certain which might be the correct guess. He continued in stately solemnity:

"I trust there remains nothing more you desire to learn sir? If not, I am requested to conduct you to the library. Ah, thank you, sir—this way, please."

He stood aside, statue-like, his eyes looking directly past me, and pointed with dignity to the open door. I obeyed the calm movement of that hand as though it had been a military order,
but, as I stepped into the twilight of the outer basement, I suddenly perceived the presence there of the attendant graybeard. He moved in advance, and I followed, aware that Peter was closely at my heels. A glance told me here was a library, not only in name, but in fact, a large square room, well lighted, the furniture mahogany, shining like glass,
three of the walls lined with books,
mostly in sombre bindings. A green-

"I Hardly Think, Sir, That Would Be Advisable. The Man Outside Is Armed and Might Hurt You."

topped table occupied the center of the apartment, a massive affair, flanked
by a leather upholstered reading chair, while before the front windows were cushioned ledges. My rapid glimpse about ended in Peter standing in dignified silence barely within the door, his hand upon the knob.

"I am authorized, sir," he said impressively, gazing directly across my shoulder, not a feature expressing emotion, "to permit you to remain here on parole."

"Parole! What do you mean?"
"Parole was, I believe, the word used, sir," in calm explanation. "It is,
as I understand, sir, a military term signifying pledge."

"Oh, I know that. Kindly concede that I possess some small intelligence, Peter. But to whom is this parole given, and what does it imply?"
"To myself, sir. This may seem slightly unconventional, sir, but I trust you will repose sufficient confidence in me not to object. The sole requirements are that you remain in this room until sent for."

"That will not be long?"

"I think not, sir."

"And who will send for me?"

Peter's eyes surveyed me, but without expression.

STOMACH TROUBLES

Cured By Vinol—Here is Proof Seymour, Ind.—"I was troubled with a chronic stomach trouble, and five weeks ago it got so bad I had to give up work. I had tried various medicines without relief, and was finally induced to try Vinol. After taking the first bottle I was greatly benefited.

It is the curative medicinal elements of the code's livers, combined with the strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in restoring perfect digestion and at the same time it builds up the tired, overworked and run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.
Helm & Ellison, Hickman, Ky.

"I am quite unable to answer that,
sir."

He was enough to provoke a saint,
but I had already butted my head against that stone wall sufficiently to learn the uselessness of any further attempt. Peter was Peter, and I crushed back my first impatient exclamation to say humbly:

"All right, my man, I'll wait here."

I sank back into the upholstered chair, and for a moment after he had closed the door I did not move. Then, scarcely knowing whether to laugh or swear over the situation, I crossed the room, and gazed out through the window. Far down the winding driveway, half concealed behind the trees, a body of British troops was tramping toward the house.

CHAPTER XIII.

A New Combination.

My first thought was that this must prove a trap, and I drew hastily back behind the curtain, believing myself justified in an effort at escape. Surely, under such conditions, my word of parole to Peter had no binding force.
Yet I waited long enough to glance forth again. The advancing body was less than a hundred strong, Queen's Rangers and Hessians, from their uniforms, straggling along on foot, limp-ing, dusty and without arms. These must be the remnant of Delavan's command, released by their guard of partisans, and now wearily seeking refuge. But why were they coming here? Surely this was not the Philadelphia road?

They turned in upon the open lawn
in front of the door, and I could plainly distinguish the faces. There could no longer be any doubt but what these were the men we had fought and defeated the evening before. Grant, with the two Hessian officers, was in advance, and the former strode directly toward the house, while the majority of his following flung themselves at full length on the ground, as though utterly exhausted. Some strange fascination held me motionless, watching the man climb the front steps. The iron knocker rang loudly twice before there came any response from within. Then I could hear voices, but the words reaching me were detached, and without definite meaning. Finally the door closed, and the two men passed along the hall, beyond the room in which I waited. Then Peter's voice said solemnly, as if announcing a distinguished guest:

"Captain Alfred Grant!"

There was an exclamation of surprise, a quick exchange of sentences
indistinguishable, although I was sure of Grant's peculiar accent, and the other voice was that of the young light Dragoon lieutenant. Uncertain what best to do I stole toward the door and gripped the knob. This was the only known way out, for I dare not venture to use the window which was in plain view of those soldiers resting on the lawn. Whether Peter had retired or not, I possessed no means of knowing, yet I opened the door silently a bare inch to make sure.
At the same instant my ears caught the lieutenant's dismissing order, even as my eyes had glimpse of Swanson's broad back blocking the open doorway
of a room nearly opposite.

"That will do, Peter, for the present.
Have the table prepared for three guests at once."

He backed out, casting a quick glance of caution in my direction, and disappeared down the hall, rubbing his bald head industriously. I opened the door wider, wondering if I dare venture upon slipping by unobserved.
Then Grant spoke, his voice loud
enough to be easily heard:

"How did we come here? Why,
where else could we go? The damned rebels stripped us clean; we had to have food. This was the nearest place where we were certain of getting any. Of course I didn't know our foragers had left Elmhurst alone, and that—for some cause which mystifies Clinton—these Jersey outlaws have been equally considerate. There was plenty to be had here, and I meant to have it in spite of the servants."

"You must have marched straight past your own place," the boyish voice interrupted.

"Well, what if we did. There was nothing there, as you know. The house has been stripped to a mere shell. Not a nigger left, nor a horse.
I'd like to know what influence keeps
this property untouched!"

"That's easily answered. You forget

Just a word in regard to crops. If you are one of the many who expect to plant land that has over-flowed, get into it with the seed the first thing. Either for corn or cotton, do your planting FIRST, and break the middles later. Get the seed in the ground and let them be coming. This will put you several days ahead of the man who breaks his ground before planting.

The Hickman Ice & Coal Co. force has been busy this week installing the new electric fans, which take the place of the old direct current fans used heretofore. The fans are all on meters now, and can be run day and night—a great improvement over the service we have had heretofore. Up to this year, no fans could be used in the residences, as the former fan circuit reached only a limited number of business houses. Now the housewife may enjoy the luxury of electric fans at a very small cost, pay only for what is used as recorded by the light meter.

When the present term of circuit court convened, there were only ten prisoners in the county jail—an unusually small number. Jailer Noonon attributes his small family to the fact that a large per cent of them have been released on bond.

To Save Meat.

Chop fine any bits of meat, chicken, pork, veal or what not, add and chop into this any cold fried or boiled eggs which have been left over. When the whole is chopped fine and thoroughly mixed, add one or two beaten eggs. The eggs can be dispensed with if necessary. Add a little sweet milk for moisture and enough cracker crumbs to make the mixture easily handled. Season with salt and pepper. Roll into croquettes and fry in hot lard. If desirable the croquettes can be made into balls and fried to a crisp in half butter and half lard.

Turkish Rice Soup.

Pick over and wash through several waters one pint of rice, soak in cold water for an hour, drain and drop into a large saucepan filled with boiling water, add one teaspoonful of salt and boil rapidly for ten minutes. Drain, add one quart of clear soup stock and one saltspoonful of saffron and simmer until the stock is absorbed. Turn out in a greased mold and keep warm. Prepare an ordinary mutton soup and serve in a tureen; turn the rice out on a heated dish and serve with the soup.

Three Days' Aeroplane Exhibits at Hickman Next Week by Andrews.

ATTRACTION IS FREE!

Industrial League Springs Big Surprise in Announcing Lot Sale Attractions. Flight Begin 14th.

The first aviator to ever visit Hickman is scheduled to arrive here with his new 1912 Curtiss bi-plane Sunday afternoon or Monday.

The aviator is F. H. Andrews, of Atlanta, Ga.

He has contracted with the Industrial League for flights on three days—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—as a drawing card for the big auction sale of lots, beginning May 14th. While these flights will cost a considerable sum of money, the attraction will doubtless serve to bring several thousand visitors to Hickman, who would otherwise not be on hand.

One of the provisions of the contract is that Mr. Andrews must remain in the air at least 30 minutes on each flight. The place of departure, of course, will be from his hangar on the Industrial League grounds, east of town. The flights will be absolutely free, and can be witnessed throughout a wide range of territory. Over the Mississippi river he will do the spiral glide and other dare-devil stunts, at a height of 8,000 feet, to thrill those who witness the dangerous performance.

In short, we are to have three Red Letter days next week.

Besides daily aeroplane exhibits there will be other attractions. Richardson Bros. Concert Band and Male Quartette is a favorite musical attraction that will be on the grounds.

There will be a set of twin auctioneers, famous the country over, who will cry the lot sale. Both will be in action at the same time—saying the same words in the same tone of voice at the same time. These are the renowned Penny Bros., of Carolina. Another set of twins—Thomas Bros.—will, in the vernacular of the lot salesman, do the "ground work." That is, to explain the dimensions of lots, etc. It is said that these twins so closely resemble each other that it is impossible for a stranger to tell one from the other. They are equal to a minstrel show in their stunt of "selling a lot a minute."

For the benefit of visitors not living on the "Father of Waters," pleasure steamers will run cheap excursions in afternoons and night. The names of the boats running these excursions are not known at this time.

This big event is being put on by the Industrial League, assisted by the American Realty and Auction Co., of Greensboro, N. C. G. B. MacCullum, advertising manager for the firm, arrived here this week, and is assisting Mr. Brown in getting things in readiness for the three biggest days Hickman has seen for a long time. The Courier is assured by Mr. MacCullum that the Atlanta aviator is an artist in his line, and no amateurish aeroplaning will be pulled off to disappoint the crowds. This week, Andrews is making flights at Atlanta, Ga. He is in the employ of the Lindsey-Hopkins Aviation Co., who guarantee him equal to the best in the United States.

In addition to the attractions here mentioned, there will be others, which will be made public on the opening day of the sale.

Miss Pauline Caldwell, of Paducah, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. W. Flynn, and brother, Will Caldwell.

The veneer mill was to have been put in full operation last week, but owing to trouble with the big turbine and other electrical machinery, they have been unavoidably delayed. The chief electrician from Louisville and an engineer from Chicago are at work on this machinery. About four hundred men are at work at the plants now.

LUMBER YARD SOLD.

Reynolds Sells Lumber Yard To Hale Lumber Co.

A deal was consummated Friday afternoon whereby the lumber business, lock, stock and barrel, of T. R. Reynolds, the late successor to the Reynolds-Moss Lumber Co., was transferred to the Hale Lumber Co., an infant industry which was preparing to open a third yard here. The purchasers take charge of the business this week, and will continue it at its present location. They had purchased lumber with which to stock their new yard, and the two stocks will be combined, giving them an extra large stock to begin business with.

Mr. Reynolds and family will return to their former home at Union City—much to the regret of the many friends they have made during their stay in Hickman. It is probable that he will be connected with the Union City Lumber Co., of which W. A. Dodds, of Hickman, is owner.

The Hale Lumber Co. is composed of B. G. Hale and two sons. Guy will be general manager and Arthur assistant manager. All are clever gentlemen, worthy of the confidence of the public and merit our patronage. The Hale Lumber Co. should succeed.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

UMBRELLA HOLDER IS HANDY

Leaves Both Hands Free to Attend to Other Things and is Convenient for Letter Carriers.

One of the things that has helped the popularity of the raincoat is the universal objection to carrying an umbrella. Indeed, people in some occupations find it impossible to carry umbrellas, and they will rejoice in the supporter designed by an Indiana man. Particularly will letter carriers find it a convenience, as it will hold an umbrella over their heads and leave both hands free to get mail from their bag and ring the doorbell. The holder is attached to the user's coat and has a groove in it and hooks to engage whatever enters the groove. The handle of the umbrella is placed in the groove and clamped fast, holding the rain protector firmly above the owner's head. If the rain stops the umbrella can be closed and carried in the holder ferrule down, thus preventing it from being an encumbrance even then. Any person who has bundles to carry would find one of these devices useful.

DEVELOP PLATES IN CAMERA

Missouri Man Invents Contrivance Enabling User to Finish Pictures Anywhere He Wishes.

In taking photographs while traveling or on vacation trips it is usually necessary to bring all the plates or films home for development, owing to lack of darkroom facilities. A Missouri man has circumvented this by inventing a camera that is also a dark room and the owner of which can develop his plates practically anywhere he chooses. The camera proper is of the bellows type and is set in one end of a box much larger than would be required to hold it. It rests on a hinged door when extended. The box has a plateholder in the front end, but practically all of its interior is clear and near the rear end is a window of colored glass, covered by a hinged flap. A flexible sleeve with an elastic mouth is fitted into the rear wall and the operator works through this. With such an apparatus a picture can be developed outdoors immediately after it is taken.

Ventilating Fans Harmful.

A test of ventilating fans in Brussels has shown that in many places they do more harm than good by stirring up germ laden dust. In the restaurants and cafes investigated, the number of bacteria in each cubic meter of air ranged from 10,000 to 22,000 before the ventilators were started, from 17,000 to 48,000 after they had been running an hour, and from 27,500 to 85,000 after two hours' running. In a laboratory where remedies for tuberculosis were prepared, the bacteria increased from 8,500 before the ventilator was started to 45,000 after one hour's running and 75,000 after two hours'. In a private parlor the bacteria numbered 660 before the starting of the ventilator, 2,500 in one hour and 4,000 in two hours, and then—the ventilator being stopped—diminished to 700 in two hours.

OLD TEACHERS RE-ELECTED.

All Places Filled But That of Principal.

The school board met Friday evening for the purpose of electing teachers for Hickman's public schools for the school year of 1912-13. With the exception of principal, all the old teachers were employed.

They are as follows:

Miss Inez Luten.
Miss Annie Sharron.
Miss Faustino Wingo.
Miss Mattie DeBow.
Miss Mattie Mae Seay.
Miss Imogene Moore.
Miss Bessie Bruer.
Mrs. Avee Journey.
Miss Lite Faris.
Miss Annie Ballow.
Miss Marguerite Fuqua, music.
Miss Louise Atwood, librarian.

Mrs. Journey, Misses Lite Faris and Annie Ballow will look after the new primary school in West Hickman.

The matter of electing a principal will be taken up at the next meeting of the board, probably next week. There are two applicants for the place—Prof. B. F. Gabby, our present principal, and Prof. E. S. Clark, of Uniontown, Ky. Prof. Gabby has been principal of our schools for a number of years, and his services have been exceptionally satisfactory. It will be hard to find a more competent and painstaking man in school work. Here's hoping Prof. Gabby is kept at the head of the Hickman public schools, which by the way are second to none in the state.

FARMERS' TELEPHONES.

A dollar a month does not go far enough after it gets into the telephone company's treasury to satisfy the manager who has to pay the upkeep and operating expenses on a big rural line system, and keep a little small change to hand over to stockholders once in six months. He has to cut too many corners, and run too many chances of getting caught short of a bank balance by a sleet storm, or a law suit.

Twelve dollars is too low for farmers' line service on the average system, with the quality and cost improved as it has been in the last few years. It is time to start after this rate. The farmers can afford to pay more—why should not they be induced to recognize value received?

Of course we know what the farmers do when it is proposed to raise the telephone rate. But can this go on forever? What is the best way to get this thing into better shape? —The American Journal of Telephony. (The Independent Telephone Journal.)

FAMOUS SUFFRAGIST

Began Life's Battle Handicapped
 by Fate.

Early Struggles of Dr. Anna Shaw,
 Head of the Suffrage Association, Who Won Success Against Many Discouragements.

Boston, Mass.—One of the ablest leaders connected with the woman suffrage movement in the United States is Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the National Suffrage association.
 She started for Albion college, in Michigan, with just $18 in her pocket. She had earned that $18 by teaching school at $1 a week, and after she had earned it she had to wait one year for the dog tax to be collected to get her pay.

Dr. Shaw was born in England, like those other pioneers of the suffrage movement, the Blackwells. But her parents took her into Michigan 52 years ago, when she was eight, having stopped four years in Massachusetts on the way. They traveled days and days in an old-fashioned prairie
 schooner to reach their destination.
 Then they lived in a log cabin. The cabin was papered with spare copies of Horace Greeley's paper, and Anna learned to read from the paper on the walls, beginning with the big letters in the advertisements and progressing to the editorials.

Miss Shaw spent four years in college and another four in the theological and medical schools of Boston university. Her people were deeply opposed to the whole plan and told

DR. ANNA SHAW

her they could do nothing whatever to help her. During that eight years she had only $91 that she did not earn.

She lived in an attic without any fire—in a Boston winter. She studied in bed to keep warm, her breath making frosty clouds upon the air. She had not food enough to satisfy hunger.

One day she was sitting on the stairs. She had sat down because she felt too weak to get to the top. A woman whom she knew slightly came along and asked her why she was sitting on the stairs. When she found out she went away and borrowed $91
 from another woman and gave it to Miss Shaw with the proviso that she was never to know from whom it came. That was the only help she has the Company allowed these confi-

Out of the vast volume of experience
 which they have to draw from, it is more had through her course. She repaid

 the money after she was graduated and never knew who lent it.

But about this time she acquired the warm friendship of Mrs. Persis Addy, a widow. During the final year of her course Mrs. Addy took her into her home, and though the student paid
 the same board she had been paying,
 she had for it the comforts of a good home and the devoted care of Mrs.
 Addy. Mrs. Addy had planned to go to Europe and take Miss Shaw with her as soon as the latter should have finished her course. She died just before commencement, but in her will left Miss Shaw $1,500 for the specified purpose of taking a European trip.
 When she was planning this journey
 Mrs. Addy's father said to her:

"Now, you will spend that money and it will be gone forever. Instead of cash, let me give you two bonds worth $1,500. Then I will keep the bonds for security and lend you $1,500
 on them. When you get to work you can repay me as convenient, and when it is all paid the bonds will be yours again."

She did this, and having acquired a certain sentiment about the matter, has done the same ever since. She has left the bonds on deposit and let the interest accumulate, and they have paid the actual traveling expenses of her three trips to Europe.

Miss Shaw took the medical course
 because during her theological course
 she did missionary work in Boston.
 She found, to use her own words, that she "had nothing the people wanted."
 They did not want either her theology or her gospel. They wanted help in their material lives. She took the medical course in order that she might give them free medical treatment.

It was as a missionary doctor and preacher in the slums of Boston that Miss Shaw became convinced that there were certain defects in an allied government which called for political power in the hands of women.
 She had always believed in woman suffrage. Now she decided to work for it. She began to speak for the Massachusetts Suffrage association and from that grew her national work.

J. T. Benedict, of Clinton, has brought suit in circuit court against the I. C. Ry. Co. for $25,000 damages for the death of his son John Benedict, who was killed in a rear-end collision on the road south of Clinton in March, this year.

After June 1, if you ask a French railroad official the time, and if it is 3 p. m., he will not say that, but instead will answer that it is "15 o'clock." If the hour is 10 p. m., he will say "22 o'clock." For France is going to number the hours on her clocks straight around the dials, without any repetition for a. m. and p. m. one o'clock after midnight will be one o'clock, and then the count will go straight on until at midnight—or old 12 o'clock—the hands will point to "24."

Messrs. Claggett and Saunders, of Union City, attended the Cunningham-Bondurant wedding Tuesday evening.

Jonakin & Thacker Bros. is the style of a new firm which has embarked in the general merchandise business at Jordan. The gentlemen composing the firm are well known in that immediate vicinity, and should make a go of their new venture. That they are wideawake and progressive is attested by the fact that they believe in advertising. Look up their ad in this paper.

The Daughters of the Confederacy will meet with Mrs. G. W. Wilson next Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

There will be a big bunch of visitors in Hickman next week to see the aeroplane stunt.

CUNNINGHAM—BONDURANT.

James Robert Cunningham, of Union City, and Miss Anne Lucile Bondurant, of this city, were married at the home of the bride's father Tuesday evening, by Rev. Stewart, of Union City.

The bride is a great favorite in Hickman and with all who know her. The groom, we understand, is a popular business man of Union City and is worthy of the fair bride he has won. They will make their home in Union City.

The bride was attired in a lovely traveling suit of blue. The groom wore conventional black.

Only a few relatives and special friends were present. While we regret to lose one so much loved and appreciated by all who know her, we must congratulate Mr. Cunningham in having won the hand and heart of one of Hickman's favorites, whom, we have every reason to believe, has all the requisite qualifications to dispense sunshine in a home and make happy the one man who can love her to the exclusion of the whole world.

Many friends were at the depot at 10:30 p. m., to extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, ere they took the train which bore them away to Cincinnati, Louisville and Nashville for a short stay, after which they will be at home to their friends in Union City.

May their pathway ever be strewn with flowers. . . .

We're Opposed to Mail Order Concerns Because—

They have never contributed a cent to furthering the interests of our town—

Every cent received by them from this community is a direct loss to our merchants—

In almost every case their prices can be met right here, without delay in receiving goods and the possibility of mistakes in filling orders.

But—

The natural human trait is to buy where goods are cheapest. Local pride is usually secondary in the game of life as played today.

Therefore

Mr. Merchant and Business Man, meet your competitors with their own weapons—advertising.

Advertise!

The local field is yours. All you need do is to avail yourself of the opportunities offered. An advertisement in this paper will carry your message into hundreds of homes in this community. It is the surest medium of killing your greatest competitor. A space this size won't cost much. Come in and see us about it.

GERMANY'S GREAT MONUMENT

Colossal Memorial Nearing Completion
Is Built to Commemorate the Battle of Leipzig.

Leipzig, Germany.—Perhaps the most colossal monument in all Germany is nearing completion here.
Leipzig was the scene of three noteworthy battles—two in the Thirty Years' War and one in the Napoleonic wars. The monument is to commemorate the battles between the French under Napoleon and an allied army of Austrians, Russians, Prussians and Swedes. The monument will be dedicated in October, 1913, on the battle's centenary.

In the accompanying illustration the monument is shown as it will appear when completed. Some of the giant carvings—one of them forty feet high—are already in place. Even in-

Leipzig Monument.

complete, the monument thrills you with its colossal dimensions. It is three hundred feet in height, but it is built on such a mountainous scale that its tremendous height is minimized.
It faces the city fronting a concreted lake several acres in extent. A broad boulevard will lead from it straight into Leipzig.

THE DIMENSIONS OF HEAVEN

Preacher Figures It to Be the Equal of a 792,000 Story Building.

Louisville, Ky.—Heaven's exact dimensions were figured out in the sermon of the Rev. M. E. Dodd, pastor of a Louisville church, preached to his congregation recently. In the course of his sermon the preacher said:

"In Revelations, twenty-first chapter, sixteenth verse, nervous Christians have read where the dimensions of heaven are only 1,500 cubic miles.
Immediately they jump at the conclusion that even this space will not accommodate the vast multitude of which the Bible speaks.

"However, calculation will show that this space will accommodate a building 792,000 stories high, and it is easy to demonstrate that such a building would accommodate an innumerable multitude."

GENERAL FARM NOTES

The breeding ram should be of the best to be had.

Crop rotation belongs to any system
which seeks to better the soil.

Thin ewes have no business dropping lambs at any season of the year.

Plenty of cheap pasture or a heavy green mulch to plow under is always a good asset.

In no line of domestic animals can
there be greater improvement made by good sires than in sheep.

The ewes when bred should have special attention to keep them strong,
vigorous, active and contented.

The breeding ewes should be fed and gotten into good condition in the fall, after the lambs are weaned.

Any feed that can be used for a pasture is worth more in that form to the farmer than if plowed under for manure.

Remember the cow has a hard time to keep up her usual milk flow and fight flies, to say nothing of the effect
the terrific heat has upon her.

The man who neglects to keep all of his farm buildings insured is taking a greater risk than he can afford, no matter how well off he may be.

Soft fruits like apples, pears and peaches will keep well in refrigerator cars for six or even eight days, but will spoil in two or three days in warm cars.

When cultivating the orchard use a short singletree with the ends curved back like a half moon—no scraping the bark off with this.

In buying grass seed get heavy, clean seed. Clean timothy seed will weigh 45 pounds and clean red top 31 pounds to the bushel.

LATE COURT NEWS.

The grand jury has returned six indictments up to last night, several of those indicted being arrested and before the court for trial at this term.

Willie Adams vs. C., M. & G., dismissed on demurrer. Appeal granted defendant. The suit is for $2500 for damages.

J. Q. Adams et al vs. W. A. Dodds.
Dismissed settled.

J. M. Garrett, appeal from Hickman Police Court, where defendant was found guilty of violating local option law, jury hung. It is understood that the jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal.

Jas. Wilson, malicious shooting, 1 year in penitentiary, and an indictment for escaping jail was filed away.
Wilson, it will be remembered, shot
Jame Noonon and shot at Rob Goal-der on Thanksgiving day four years ago when seven prisoners broke jail, overpowering the Jailer and taking his cell keys when he carried their ladder to the prisoners. Wilson shot the Jailer in the hand with his own pistol and opened fire on the crowd on the river bank. The other case will be pushed when he is released from the penitentiary.

Jo Fry, receiving stolen goods, continued. Defendant is charged with receiving goods stolen from W. S. Doty's store in West Hickman.

N., C. & St. L., common nuisance,
two cases, dismissed.

Barnell Wright, appeal from Hickman Police Court where he was found guilty of violating the local option
law, fined $57.50 by a jury.

Jim Ammons, firing deadly weapon
on public highway, fined $75 by jury.

Green Oatsvale, who shot a Mr.
Boldt at a store near Bessie, will be tried today.

568 PEOPLE FED YESTERDAY.

Rev. H. J. Geiger, who has been identified with relief work since the flood last month until the present time, has compiled some interesting figures during his services. The highest number of refugees in Hickman at any one time was 4,000. The loss of personal property to these people,
such as clothing, furniture, chickens,
pigs and other purely personal property, amounted to $37,320.75, which on an average is certainly not exaggerated. All of these people were renters, and these figures have nothing to do with the loss of houses, fences, horses, farm machinery and farm products. Rations were issued from the commissary yesterday for 568 people and forage for 505 head of stock.

Of course a man with a better half
isn't the whole thing.

Much that passes for real wisdom
is nothing but nonsense.

A change in fashion separates a man from his spare change.

When some people pray it sounds
more like an order than a petition.

Every time an old bachelor meets
a young widow he gets stage fright.

An ounce of sense today is far better than a pound of regret tomorrow.

Eternity seems a long time—except to a couple of women saying good-by.

A prima donna doesn't always lose her temper when she goes up in the air.

Many a woman drives her husband to drink and then blames him for letting her do it.

What a small boy can't understand is how a small girl manages to keep her hands so clean.

How contented most women seem to be who live alone—and how discontented most men are who try it!

CANDIDATES SPEAK.

The three announced candidates for Congress from this district spoke at the Court House Tuesday afternoon to a good sized audience representing all parts of the county. There being no special issue to be discussed, the gentlemen good naturedly presented their claims to the voters. Of course each man had a logical reason why he should have the place in preference to his "worthy" opponent.
To an out-sider it appears that Judge Barkley and Hon. Denny P. Smith will share public favor about equally,
and will have the lead over Hon.
Jake Corbett. Corbett, however, will be in the running and is making a good impression among those, who for lack of knowing him, failed to consider him seriously. All are good fellows—give them an equal show and let the best man win.

All syrups and fruits, used at the fountain are absolutely pure---none better.

☐ Jones' Home-Made Bread, which has continued to grow in popularity solely on its merit, is better than ever. We have built a new coke oven and added all modern improvements---heat registering and electric devices---that insures absolute perfect baking. The baking department is, according to State Inspectors, one of the most sanitary and modern in the state. While engaged in helping with the work in the commissary Monday, Rev. H. J. Geiger had occasion to lay his hat down for the time. There is such a thing as being in another man's hat as well as "in another man's shoes."

WATER DRIVES OUT 500. Refugee Camp and Commissary Re-Opened at Hickman Sunday.

The second rise in the river, which reached a maximum of 50 feet on the Cairo gauge last Sunday, made it necessary for many people to leave the bottoms below Hickman last week and come to this city to get on high ground. They had only been away from town a few days, having spent a month in camp during the big April rise.

Their return to Hickman made it necessary to re-open camp, and something over 500 people are now being fed by the government. The commissary in charge of R. W. Eaker, was opened Sunday morning in the old Fuqua, Helm & Co. stand, where both clothing and provisions are being given out to those in necessity. The committee in charge of this work is composed of Mesdames A. A. Faris, R. L. Bradley, T. A. Ledford, Ernest Johnson, S. L. Dodds, J. W. Naylor, C. G. Schlenker, and Misses Bettie DeBow and Charlotte Hubbard, and Messrs. R. W. Eaker and Rev. H. J. Gelger, assisted by Capt. Powers,

Capt. Elliott and Lieut. Ramsey. The commissary has been fortunate in receiving a large lot of clothing sent in from Texas, Nashville, Louisville and Pulaski, Tenn.

One hundred sixty-six people were given rations Sunday morning when the commissary opened, and at present over three hundred are being fed and quartered in government tents.

To be exact, the commissary issued rations as follows:

Sunday, 166 people.
Monday, 400 people.
Tuesday, 522 people.

On Tuesday 326 head of stock were also being fed by the government.

It is now thought the situation will be such that rations may be discontinued in the early part of the coming week, as the river is falling rapidly and a large per cent of the refugees may be able to return to their homes in the bottoms.

NOTED FEUDIST SHOT.

Ed Callahan, the most noted feudist in the Kentucky mountains, and charged with being an instigator of many murders, was shot from ambush Saturday. Callahan was shot down while standing on the steps of his store at Crockettville. His body was riddled with bullets. He was standing in exactly the same spot where he stood two years ago when he was shot through the lungs. He was formerly sheriff of Breathitt county.

MEXICAN TROOPS SLAY 700

Heavy Federal Force Surrounded in Piedras Negras.

San Antonio, Tex.—Dispatches from Eagle Pass tell of a victory of federal troops over rebels at a point near Monclova, in the state of Coahuila, where 700 rebels are reported to have been killed.

It was reported that the federals, commanded by Jesus Carranza, has encountered a force of 1,800 rebels at Cuatro Ciénegas. The rebels, under Salazar, believed they had an easy time ahead, and marching upon Piedras Negras, across the river from Eagle Pass, became careless. The federals suspected this, returned, surrounded the town while the rebels were celebrating, and routed them.

CORN ONLY $1.20 A BUSHEL.

Not since the re-construction days has feed stuff been so high in Hickman. Corn—just plain corn, too—is selling here at $1.20 a bushel. And hay seems to have gotten in the grasp of the trusts, as it is retailing at $35.00 a ton. This is the same corn our farmers sold last fall at 50c, and the hay is no better than they sold at $15. The most striking feature of the whole thing is that the farmer is the man who is buying most of the high priced feed stuff, having sold the same products last fall for less than half what he is paying now. The middle man—the same fellow that made a fortune of our grandfathers and is now riding in his automobile—is the fellow who is reaping a rich harvest now because the average farmer does lots of work and little thinking. It is to be hoped that the farmers and planters who have been caught at the mercy of the grain buyers this year, will open their eyes to the simple fact that it is better to raise their own forage and hold it than to sell it to the other fellow, pay the freight both ways and buy it back at twice what he sold it for.

JURY SING SUGGESTIVE HYMN

Prisoner in Cell Hears Church Service in Courtroom.

Wytheville, Va.—The Allen jury went to church Sunday and returning to its room in the court house held a song service. The hearty voices of the twelve stalwart countrymen blended in the harmony of the old hymn, "Are You Ready for the Judgment Day?"

Across the court house green, Floyd Allen, the prisoner on trial—first of the gang which shot up the Carroll county court in March—heard the song.

Allen's mental strain, and the physical agony he has endured from his broken leg, which was improperly set, have made him a sorry sight. He is now little like the rugged mountaineer who once spread fear over a countryside. His decline has alarmed all who see him.

NEW TELEPHONE MANAGER.

The second change has taken place since the resignation of D. Owens in the local management of the Cumberland Telephone Co., at Hickman. A. J. Beadles, of Union City, was given Mr. Owen's place and looked after the business one week. Monday new man, Tom Hall, of Tiptonville, succeeded Mr. Beadles, and he will probably continue in the local management, or rather in the capacity of assistant, as J. M. (Mac) Moore, of Union City, will have direct supervision of the Hickman exchange. Mr. Moore was formerly manager here but has been holding a similar position at Union City for the past three years.

This company now has a force of men engaged in cabling their entire system within the city. They also have new boards and other equipment to be installed when the cable work is finished. Prospects are good for one of the very best systems in the state.

James Cunningham, of Union City, was here Sunday.

The department of agriculture at Washington will send a man to Kentucky to teach the farmers how to build concrete silos.

Dan Creason, wife and baby left Saturday for Hope, Ark., to attend the funeral of Mrs. Creason's mother, Mrs. C. L. Spillers, who died there last week.

Ed. C. Cline, of Eaton, Ohio, arrived in Hickman Monday, and is the guest of his sister, Mrs. C. G. Schlenker. He will leave Saturday for McAllister, Okla.

Mrs. C. L. Walker left Saturday night for Valparaiso, Ind., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Chester Barnes. She was accompanied as far as Fulton by Mr. Walker.

Capt. O. L. Powers, who has been at Hickman during the recent flood and rendered most excellent service in behalf of the flood sufferers, spent Sunday with his wife at Earlington, Ky., returning to Hickman Monday night.

The little 3-year-old baby boy of Tom Myers, who was forced out of the bottoms on account of high water, died Monday in the West Hickman Baptist Church, where they were provided with temporary quarters. The remains were laid to rest at Brownsville, Tuesday.

See the "New Line of Lemar Cravats" at Curlin's.

There will be a big bunch of visitors in Hickman next week to see the aeroplane stunt.

It was reported this week that John Edwards, who owns an 80-acre farm in the sand, had been offered John McFarland's 400 acres of bottom land in exchange for it. But John McFarland says this is a mistake. He admits however, offering Edwards 40 acres of bottom land for his 80 in the sand. —East Prairie Eagle.

101 and Penniless.

St. Louis, Mo.—Joseph Meyer, 101 years old, who has lost six children and a chicken farm by floods, has started to a Chicago institution of charity with 5 cents in his pocket. He will cover the distance afoot.

After the Galveston tidal wave had killed his two sons and four daughters, Meyer gathered what remained of his $30,000 fortune and started a farm at Hickman, Ky. The flood there destroyed his chickens and everything else but a few odds and ends.

Railroad Company Indicted.

Chicago.—The Illinois Central Railroad Company was indicted by a federal grand jury here charged with violations of the government laws regulating the interstate shipment of cattle.

The indictment charges the railroad company with having shipped a carload of cattle in 1911 from Mississippi to Chicago without inspection when the state was quarantined by Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture on account of the fever epidemic among cattle in that state.

A petition signed by over 400 people, will be presented to the members of the school board at their next meeting asking that Prof. Gabby be retained as principal of Hickman's schools.

Save Remnant of Flag.

Montgomery, Ala.—A silk star from the flag that was unfurled above the first company of Confederate troops organized in Montgomery will be placed in the department of archives and history. President W. A. Gunter, Jr., has received a letter from A. B. DeBell, deputy warden of game and fish of Michigan, advising that he has the star among his collection of Civil War trophies, and that he will present it either to the city or state. President Gunter will thank him for the star, and it will be brought to Montgomery at once.

Butler Monument Set Back.

Boston.—The proposition to erect a statue of the late Maj.-Gen. Ben F. Butler, either within the state capitol or upon the statehouse grounds, received another setback, when a house committee voted "ought not to pass," on the bill. Earlier in the session the committee on statehouse reported adversely, but the house overruled the report and the bill was sent to the ways and means committee. The bill provided a $25,000 appropriation.

CLAYTON NEWS.

Mrs. Jennie Cloar went to Union City Monday.

Ed Marshall and wife were in Union City Monday.

News is scarce in this neighborhood now as everybody is at work.

The farmers in the hills are getting busy during this pretty weather.

Mrs. Toy Coar and Mrs. Kent Harper went to Hickman one day last week.

Misses Pearl Cloar and Lillian Cheatham spent one day last week in Paducah.

Sunday School is now held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoons, instead of in the morning. Everybody invited.

Mrs. Taylor, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Tom Cheatham, returned to her home in Martin Monday.

Fred Robertson purchased a fine mare from Jim Lusk, of near Brownsville, last week, paying $200 for the animal.

Mrs. Linda Edwards, of Brownsville and little grandson, Clyde Bowen, of near Jordan, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Griffith.

L. L. Hindman, of Clinton, and Miss Ruby Samuel, daughter of a prominent Columbus merchant, were married Sunday at Paducah.

W. P. Myles, for 30 years a well known citizen of Fulton, died at his daughter's home in Martin Sunday within a short time after the death of his wife. He was a Confederate veteran.

It is said that a well known attorney in the east end of the county placed $700 here this week on a wager that Jno. Hendrick, of Paducah, would be our next Congressman. That looks to us like a good chance to lose $700.

A subscription paper is being circulated among the baseball fans for the purpose of defraying the expense of equipping a local team for this city. Hickman has a ball park and a bunch of boys that can do some good playing with a little practice. Why not have a team?

BURLEY TOBACCO IS DEAL RATIFIED

SOCIETY APPROVES PURCHASE OF STRATER PLANT.

Loose-Leaf Plants to Cost $50,000
Each, Will Be Built at Several Points in the State.

Lexington.—The executive committee of the Burley Tobacco Society, which is also the executive committee of the Burley Tobacco Company, the property holding branch of the society under the new ten-year pool, met here and resolving itself into the committee of the Burley company formally ratified the purchase of the Strater Brothers' tobacco factory at Louisville. In the discussion before the committee it was stated that it would take fully fifteen months to build the new tobacco factory to be erected by the company in this city, and that it was important for the company to secure an established plant so as to begin its manufacturing operations as soon as possible. The Strater company, it was said, had a national reputation for the thirty brands which it made, and employed more than fifty salesmen on the road. These salesmen and the other employees of the Strater plant will be retained by the Burley company, the policy of which will be not to disturb the working organization in any way.

New loose-leaf plants of unusual magnitude are to be built this summer in Frankfort, Shelbyville, Maysville and several other points, each of which will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000.

GOOD SEED CORN SCARCE.

Agricultural Department Issues Warning to Farmers.

Seed corn in Kentucky this spring is running so poorly that warning has been issued by the department of agriculture to the farmers of the state urging them to pay more attention to the kind of corn planted. It is stated by Commissioner of Agriculture Newman that he has had great difficulty securing enough good seed corn to supply the 10,000 members of the corn-growing clubs which have been and are being organized in the state among the school boys. Unless the farmers look carefully into the quality of the corn that they plant this spring the crop in Kentucky will be short, Mr. Newman says.

Pensions For Confederate Veterans.

Washington.—Representative R. Y. Thomas, Jr., in an interview, expressed his willingness to take up with the War Department, matters of identification of Kentucky Confederate soldiers so that they or their estates may apply for monthly pensions under the new Kentucky law. Mr. Thomas has received many requests for the records of individual Confederate soldiers, but the files of the War Department are by no means complete.

"One of the very best laws passed by the recent session of the Kentucky Legislature was that granting a pension to Confederate soldiers, and the widows of Confederate soldiers," he said.

Lige Turpin Acquitted.

Stanford.—A jury of Lincoln county men acquitted Lige Turpin of the murder of Boge Phillips at the present term of the Rockcastle Circuit Court. The affair happened one night during the Brodhead fair several years ago. Interest was so keen that a jury out of that county had to be obtained. Turpin is 69 years of age and was a member of the company commanded by Gov. McCreary during the Civil War. The evidence against him was purely circumstantial.

Increase in Collections.

Louisville.—Internal revenue collections for the month of April this year exceeded those of April, 1911, $5,887.69, according to figures given out by D. B. Edmiston, deputy collector for this district. The total collections for the month just closed amounted to $1,301,387.64, while those for April, 1911, amounted to $1,295,499.95. The collections on whiskey during the month show a gain of $53,993.94 over those of April, 1911, while the collections on tobacco show a decrease of $54,995.02, compared with collections last year.

Poultry Experiment Plant.

On account of the growing importance of poultry raising in Kentucky the State University has bought a plat of land adjoining the university grounds, and will devote it to poultry experiments in connection with the college of agriculture.

Pumphouse Rammed.

Eddyville.—This city is facing a water famine of a serious character, so far as fire protection and domestic service is concerned, as the result of the wrecking of the penitentiary pump-house this afternoon when the towboat Clyde rammed the pumphouse with her tow of six barges.

Youthful Mother.

Georgetown.—Probably the youngest mother and grandmother in the state live in Georgetown. Mrs. Kate Fields, 13, became the mother of a daughter Thursday. The grandmother of the babe is barely 30.

Feud Leader Shot.

Lexington.—Ed Callahan, notorious Breathitt county feudist, was assassinated as he stood in the door of his store at Crockettville. The feudist was riddled with bullets.

FARM AND BEES

CHAFF HIVES FOR WINTERING
No Better Place for Caring for the Bees Than Out of Doors During Severe Cold Weather.

I know of no better method of wintering bees than to winter them out of doors providing you have the right kind of hive, and pack them properly and in season, says a writer in the Orange Judd and Farmer. I have

The Hive Bottom.

five different styles of chaff or double-walled hives, the result of several years' experimenting, and the hive illustrated here is the one I like best of any, as it not only winters well, but it admits of all kinds of manipulation and tying up, as well as single-walled hives.

These hives are made as follows:
Bottom board at least four inches larger each way than the hive designed to be packed in it. It would be better six or even eight inches if you can stand the extra lifting on the covers, which must be larger in proportion.

Nail the four sides to lap over the bottom, coming down flush with the under side and thus keeping any water from soaking in onto the bottom. Make them high enough so that when your inside hive is placed therein, the outside rim will be three or four inches above the inside hive.

Cover should be six inches deep at outside and deep enough in center to make slant enough to shed water. One of the secrets of successful outdoor wintering is an abundance of packing. Make cover just large enough to telescope over top of outside rim, which should have pieces nailed on one inch below top to build it up.

If you tier up much in the summer, don't hinge cover, but leave it

Outside Packing Case.

so you can remove it and put on extra rims to raise or tier up to any desired height. Cover the bottom with tar paper, which will retain heat and also keep out ants.

Make an inside bottom to fit the inside hive, and long enough to project through the entrance in outside rim and leave an alighting board two or three inches wide across the front. Make a bridge the width of your packing space to put over the passage to outside entrance, and keep out chaff, etc.

Gathering Fuel.

If one can possibly get the time he will do well to pick up a lot of fuel in the wood lot that cannot be had after snowfall. It pays to gather up this wood in more ways than one. It saves the wood, makes the forest look more tidy and pleasing to the owner's eye.

Blanching Celery.

In order to have white stalks of celery, it is well to blanch it by banking with earth or placing boards about it, leaving just a few inches of the stalk above ground. This is done gradually in warm weather; the boards are more satisfactory, as the celery does not decay as readily under them.

Pasturing Winter Wheat.

Wheat which was planted early and is now up and making a good growth may be pastured when the ground is dry or frozen, without materially affecting next season's crop yield. Keep the stock off when the ground is muddy.

Telephone Wire.

The telephone wire is one of the strongest ties that binds people to the farm. It is the nerve which keeps farm folk in touch with their friends and neighbors and in touch with the outside world.

A Goal for the Farmer.

Every farmer should work out and adopt a permanent system of agriculture under which he can increase and maintain the fertility of his land, enjoy a good living, rise in social value, and wield a good influence in his community.

Dressing for Corn.

CHURCH BUILT OF FOSSILS

Building Constructed of Blocks Hewed From the Petrified Depths of a Nearby Swamp.

Mumford, N. Y.—In Mumford is a church building constructed of fossils. At first glance the walls appear to be constructed of rough sandstone smeared with an uneven coating of gritty, coarse, plaster; but a closer view shows delicate traceries of leaves, lace-work of interwoven twigs, bits of broken branches, fragments of mossy bark, splinters of wood, all preserved against the wasting of time and decay by being turned into the hardest of flinty limestone. Every block of stone in the four walls is a closely cemented mass of dainty fossils, literally packed and interwoven. There is no basic rock at all, but only fossil fibers, which give the rock cohesion and strength. Nevertheless, the stones are light in weight compared with granite and sandstone.

The blocks were hewed from the petrified depths of a nearby cedar swamp. Mumford is situated in the heart of the great area of rock, once the bed of an ocean, known to geologists as the Niagara limestone. It crops out either in the form of the soft, calcareous stone, or the hard and more serviceable blue limestone. The clear, cold water which gushes from innumerable springs or flows in frequent brooks throughout the Mumford country is alkaline from the lime held in solution.

He is Hickman's youngest lawyer.

SIAM'S AMAZON GUARD

Siam is one of the few countries which boast of corps of women police. The members of this Amazon Guard are all old and ugly. They wear uniform though they are not armed. Their chief duty is to act as gate keepers of the inner, or women's palace at Bangkok. They follow any stranger who enters the palace and remain with him until he takes his departure. They see that there is no mischief made and that no one makes love to the royal wives and concubines. Men who have business inside the palace—doctors, architects, carpenters, electric light fitters, etc.—enter the palace freely, but are always accompanied by some of the Amazon guard. The palace has some difficulty in recruiting these guards, as the work is hard and the pay poor, and the qualification—uncomplimentary.

RELIC OF INDIAN MUTINY

In front of St. James' church in Delhi, the old-new capital of India, are a cross and ball that are vivid reminders of the great Indian mutiny. At that time they were on top of the church, and they contain no fewer than a hundred bullet holes.

THE WAY IN GERMANY

Last year a Russian traveler asked a Berlin railway official on which platform a train to a particular city would arrive. The official nodded to one side. The Russian interpreted this as permission to cross the rails in the direction of the nod. A shunted engine went over him and cut off his arm. A week later in hospital he received a Strafmandat requiring him to pay 45 marks for "unauthorizedly, and to the state railway regulations contrarily, crossing the line."

MINERALS IN HUMAN BODY

The human body contains, among other constituents, about two pounds of phosphorus, which is essential to the health of the bones and the vigor of the brain. This phosphorus, if extracted and put to another use, would make up about 4,900 packages of friction matches.

Besides phosphorus, the body contains a few ounces of sodium and half an ounce of potassium. The quantity of the latter would be sufficient for many experiments in a class in chemistry.

In addition to sodium and potassium there are a few grains of magnesium, enough to make the "silver rain" for a family's stock of rockets on a Fourth of July evening or to create a brilliant light visible at a considerable distance.

WHEN THEY WORE "PIGTAILS"

The edict sanctioning the abolition of the pigtail reminds us that it is not so very long since the pigtail disappeared not merely from the army and navy, but even from every day civilian life in England. Waistlong pigtails were the fashionable wear in England about 1740 and before that the bag wig had been adorned with a pigtail looped up in a black silk bag. As late as 1858 an old gentleman was seen on Cheapside with his gray hair tied behind in a short queue, and even today we can find a relic of the pigtail, for the three pieces of black velvet on the dress tunics of officers in the royal Welsh fusiliers are the remains of the ribbon with which the queue was tied.

FIRST CAT TAX LEVIED

Munich, in Bavaria, is the first city in the world to levy a tax upon the domestic cat. The tax is 5s, and every cat is provided with a special collar and a metal check such as the dogs wear. Those who are not thus provided will be caught by authorized persons. The measure is not popular, but it is considered that there are far too many cats in the city, and it is expected that the levying of the tax will result in reducing the numbers kept.

RAINIEST SPOT ON EARTH

The rainfall of a village among the hills of Assam during the ten weeks from May 1 to July 9 was 250 inches. The village is Cherrapunji, the rainiest spot in Asia and presumably in the world. Its annual rainfall is something over 450 inches, say, 15 times as much as London. Cherrapunji stands on a plateau overlooking the plain of Sylhet, and it is 4,455 feet above sea level.

Wall To Stop Evil Spirits

The peculiar wall shown in the illustration is near Hankow, China, and was erected to stop the passage of evil spirits, presumably on the same principle which causes the ordinary middle-class dwelling house in China to have inside the front door a fixed screen which compels anyone entering the house to turn to the right or left. The explanation of this is that evil spirits are able to move only in straight lines.

THELBERT ROGERS HURT.

Thelbert Rogers, of night rider fame, was probably fatally injured Sunday by being thrown from a buggy. It is said he and three companions were in a buggy having a little "high" time when their horse ran off the road and down the hill near an old still house. Rogers was picked up and carried to his home, four miles this side of Reelfoot Lake. Attending physicians ascertained that he has suffered internal injuries from which he may not recover.

SOMETHING DOIN'—?

It is rumored that detectives, sent here to keep "tab" on the situation during the time the government was furnishing food for man and beast driven into camp here by the flood, have found some cases where forage was given out to parties financially able to buy their supplies, and that they will be prosecuted. It constitutes a grave offense to accept federal aid when it can be proven that a person is financially able to take care of themselves and stock; in fact, all were duly warned against fraudulently obtaining supplies at the government's expense.

14 HOUSES WASHED AWAY.

The recent high water did considerable damage at the narrow neck or cut-off at Slough Landing, below Hickman. Fourteen houses were washed into the river by the water cutting across the narrow half-mile strip. It also washed the banks badly, and it is only a question of time when the river will make a channel there. When it does, New Madrid will no longer be a river town, and at the same time, thousands of acres of fine bottom land will be ruined. Where the water poured off on the lower side of the neck of ground, it washed a hole said to be fifty feet deep. W. A. Hinshaw came across this strip in a gasoline boat while the water was up, and has the distinction of being the first man to ever cross it in a launch. It is now only a half mile across the narrowest place, while to follow the main channel of the river is forty miles. Some of our citizens can remember when it was eight miles across this place. A few more high waters, and the river will cut a channel here, and shorten the river fully forty miles. From time to time not only residences but whole farms have paid toll to the greedy, slowly encroaching waters.

CONVERSES WITH ANIMALS

Charles Kellogg of California, who, if not a nature-faker, is one of the most remarkable human beings of all time, arrived at Cambridge, Mass., recently from Paris to confer with professors from Harvard's department of science, confident that he could convince them of his ability to converse with animals. Mr. Kellogg has just returned from Europe, where he gave demonstrations of his unique power before professors of the universities of Paris and Berlin. According to Mr. Kellogg, he has accomplished in reality during a life spent in the wilds of the Sierra Nevada mountains in California what the genius of Kipling makes Mowgli accomplish during a childhood passed in the tropical jungles. But Kellogg has for friends only the animals of the temperate American west. He knows not the language of the tropical monkey, though he has often talked "bear" with the grizzlies of the Sierra Nevadas. Crickets, squirrels, lizards and rattlesnakes are some of the other animals whose languages Mr. Kellogg speaks fluently. Says Mr. Kellogg:

"It was by years of constant observation and associating of sounds with actions that I mastered the 13 animal languages I am familiar with. I began on domestic chickens and gradually extended my study to include such wild animals and reptiles as the bear, the lizard and the rattlesnake. Using a system of hieroglyphics modeled upon the modern Chinese system, I have compiled a dictionary of the language of the ordinary brown or hearth cricket, which has the most highly developed language of any of the animals I am familiar with, though I have reason to suspect the monkeys are superior in this respect. From my dictionary I find there are 27 elemental words or sounds, and 85 other words made up of various combinations of the original 27, a cumulative system not unlike that of the Germans. The number of words or sounds in other animal languages I am familiar with varies from 12 to 95."

Although Mr. Kellogg admits that his ability to interpret the enunciations of animals is the result of long and arduous study, he insists that his ability to make himself understood, to imitate the sounds of these animals, is God-given. He says he can without the least difficulty reproduce any sound that comes from an animal's throat. He has a peculiarly constructed palate, no tonsils, and the cord connecting the teeth with the lower lip is entirely missing, but he has been assured by the most noted specialists that there is nothing abnormal about his throat and vocal cords. They are at a loss to account for his strange gift.

LARGEST OF PROJECTILES

The accompanying illustration is of more than ordinary interest from the fact that it shows the largest and heaviest projectile in the world, being the huge five-foot, armor-piercing shell fired from the United States government's great 16-inch rifle, which may be taken to the Panama canal. This giant shell and powerful gun are considered two of the most destructive and deadly engines of warfare in existence. The monster 16-inch rifle, the only one built so far, is now at the Sandy Hook proving grounds, and has only been fired a few times. The huge shell of steel can be hurled a distance of 20 miles or more, and weighs 2,400 pounds. The powder charge is nearly 500 pounds. The cost of firing one shot reaches in the neighborhood of $1,000. It is not probable that this type of gun will be used, but rather the 14 inch, for the main coast defenses of the Panama canal. This formidable and long range weapon, though capable of firing so tremendous a projectile, is too costly, and fires too slowly for modern warfare.

FRENCH FISH GO ON A JAG

An unusual sight was witnessed at Frontignan, France, recently. The ponds of Eaux Blanches and the Midi Canal were covered with fish floating about on the surface in a helpless and altogether inexplicable manner. The customs officials were the unwitting cause of this phenomenon. They had seized 66,000 gallons of "doctored" Spanish wine at the frontier station and disposed of it by emptying it into the canal, with disastrous effects on the fish. The fish could be easily caught with the hand and the local fishermen were quick to take advantage of their helpless state.

RED CROSS APPEALS FOR FLOOD FUNDS

ARMY ORDER NO MORE RATIONS FOR REFUGEES.

AWAIT CONGRESS' ACTION

Red Cross Society Appeals for Funds to Aid the Sufferers—160,000 Persons Must Be Cared For.

Washington.—The failure of congress to pass the resolution appropriating $420,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers along the Mississippi river caused the army to instruct Major Normoyle, in charge of the work in the Mississippi valley flood district, to cease making contracts for supplies, and prompted the American National Red Cross Society to issue a second urgent appeal for funds to take up the work of relief when the army stops. Urged to action, the house passed the relief resolution, but the measure still lacks the sanction of the senate. When the money is made available only $179,000 of it will be left, the balance going to the commissary department to reimburse it for funds already spent from its regular appropriation.

While congress has been asked for only $420,000, it was declared by Commissary General Sharpe of the army that probably $750,000 would be needed to take care of the situation.

Fully 160,000 persons in the flooded section are being fed daily on army rations. The first flood is just entering the Louisiana district, and another is on the way down the river. In Louisiana alone during the flood of 1882, $231,000 was spent.

Declaring that the cutting off of relief operations by the army because of lack of appropriations would result in "nothing less than incalculable suffering from hunger, exposure and disease," the American Red Cross issued another appeal for funds for this work. They asked immediate response to enable them to take up the relief when the army leaves off.

While the Red Cross has issued one appeal for the flood sufferers, it came right after the Titanic disaster and consequently little response was received.

"With many thousand helpless people dependent wholly upon public bounty for food, shelter and medical care and with thousands of horses and cattle to be protected and fed," said the Red Cross officials, "any general or prolonged discontinuance of relief operations at this time can result in nothing less than incalculable suffering from hunger, exposure and distress."

From the Fulton County Capitol

Circuit Court convened in Hickman Monday morning, but got a poor start. Monday was given over to empanelling and charging the grand jury. Tuesday morning a part of the petit jury was chosen and Tuesday afternoon the four candidates were given an opportunity to present their claims to the voters that were attending court.

Judge R. J. Bugge, of Bardwell, is presiding, and R. L. Smith, of Clinton, representing the Commonwealth.

The court got down to business Wednesday morning and the following cases have been disposed of:

Inian Maryd, a gypsy, charged with grand larceny, case filed away. She jumped her $50 bond and left the county.

Capt. T. A. Smith, of the Rees Lee, was acquitted of one charge of violating the local option law and nine other cases of the same character were filed away. The judge gave the jury peremptory instructions to find for the defendant.

Walter Burgitt, breach of peace,

case submitted to the Court and fined $10 and costs.

Dave Richmond, violating local option law, dismissed.

Walter Russell was indicted by the grand jury charged with chicken stealing. Released on bond.

The case of Tom Thomasson charged with shooting the foot off of a small negro boy in a road in the bottom, is set for trial today.

Bob Flanagan's trial is also set for today.

The court gave peremptory instructions to find for the defendants in the case of State against Ben, Will and James Whitson, charged with malicious shooting. This case originated in Madrid Bend near Besse.

Sheriff Johnson was ordered to get a special venire of fifty men to try the case of Rheul Barfield, charged with the murder of two white men Christmas week, in the bottom. The case has been set for trial today.

METHODIST CHURCH AND AMUSEMENTS

BISHOPS FAVOR RAISING BAR AGAINST SAME.

WARM CONTEST EXPECTED

General Conference in Session at Minneapolis Will Give Questions Prayerful Consideration and Decision.

Minneapolis.—The American people are too far advanced longer to be restricted by church rules as to what their amusements shall be. The rule prohibiting dancing, card playing, gambling and going to theaters, circuses and horse races, therefore, should be abolished.

This is the gist of a report presented to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the board of bishops.

A demonstration which greeted Bishop Earl Cranston's reading of the recommendation was taken as indicating a lively debate on the question when it comes up for a vote.

A motion declaring that the rule "always had been a source of constant irritation and unrest in the church," and asking that it be referred to a committee was promptly voted down, arguments being presented that the full conference was "going to settle that question and no one else."

Arguments against continuing the anti-amusement law as presented were:

The majority of church-goers never have refrained from dancing and theaters because of the church, and the violation of this rule has tended to bring all church discipline into contempt; that many people regard Shakespeare on the stage as being as good as Shakespeare in a book; that many people refuse to condemn all places because some of them are bad just as much as they would refuse to condemn all novels because some novels are not proper; that gambling is fundamentally wrong and does not need a rule to prohibit it.

In adopting a resolution denouncing Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson for accepting the honorary chairmanship of a brewers' congress in Chicago last October, the conference declared President Taft, Secretary Wilson and Secretary of State Knox "have forfeited all claims on the future franchise of the Christian and sober manhood of the nation," because they had ignored appeals that no government official attend the congress.
